Transparency important to Metro District

Transparency in local government means operating in a way that creates an open culture. The Highlands Ranch Metro District is committed to operating in a transparent manner with our citizens, partners and customers.

You’ll find our commitment to transparency illustrated in the way we do business, in the manner we operate each day, and in the information available on our website. In fact, there is a transparency section on the site that is filled with information, documents and links designed to provide website visitors an opportunity to learn more about the Metro District’s budgets, how we operate, our elections, elected officials and a wide variety of our organization’s documents.

I encourage you to visit our website to learn more about your local government and how we operate. Visit highlandsranch.org/transparency to learn more.

For more information about the Metro District’s transparency efforts, please contact Terry Nolan at tnolan@highlandsranch.org.

A solid foundation through partnerships

I’m proud that the Metro District has built a solid foundation on which to operate and provide municipal services to Highlands Ranch. Over the past 38 years, as our community has grown, we have literally built a community we’re all proud to call home.

Our model of government is unique and has been quite successful thanks to the many partnerships we enjoy with fellow governments and local organizations. Through innovative approaches, these partnerships have helped to keep our community a great place to live, work and play – and have kept property taxes among the lowest in the area.

We enjoy working with Douglas County on road maintenance projects, as you can read about on Page 5. Collaborative efforts with the Douglas County Sheriff’s Office, among the finest law enforcement officers in the country, have resulted in successful projects that lead to safe neighborhoods. Partnering with the Highlands Ranch Community Association on the new community portal at highlandsranch.com helps to provide information and access to online community information.

Our partnership with Centennial Water & Sanitation District has been quite successful, with many employees working as shared employees for both organizations, saving money and working smart.

If you have questions about Metro District partnerships, programs, services or projects, please contact me at tnolan@highlandsranch.org.

A chapter of Mansion history: rags to riches

For nearly a century, the Highlands Ranch Mansion served as a residence for some of Colorado’s most notable families. Waite Phillips, one of the Mansion’s owners, came from humble beginnings and possessed an adventurous spirit.

In 1899 at age 16, he and his twin brother struck out for the west, leaving behind the Iowa farm on which they were raised. Most people couldn’t tell the boys apart, from their identical looks to their strikingly similar names – Waite and Wiate (pronounced why-it). For three years the twins traveled thousands of miles throughout the western United States and Canada. They would take odd jobs at stops along the way, ranging from being busboys at a restaurant to building a section of railroad with a pick and shovel. Whatever work they could find in timber camps, railroad camps, hotels, and factories would set them up for the next leg of their travel.

However, their adventure came to a tragic end in 1902 when Wiate died of a burst appendix in Washington. Waite was devastated, alone and far from home. He accompanied his twin brother’s body on the train back to Iowa for burial.

Later in his life, Waite would go on to amass a great fortune in the oil business. He sold his company in 1925 for a reported $25 million, which in today’s money would be worth approximately $356 billion.

Visit the Mansion to discover more about Waite Phillips’ life and his ownership of the Mansion and ranch from 1920-1926. Learn more at highlandsranchmansion.com.

Protect your pets to minimize coyote conflicts

During spring in the Denver metro area, it is not abnormal to see coyotes during the day. Our close proximity to wildlife makes it important to understand how to avoid conflicts with coyotes and keep your pets safe.

Coyotes pair up during the spring breeding season, den and typically give birth to pups in April. During this time, male coyotes will be spotted throughout the day on the hunt for food for their partner and pups. Small dogs and cats have the potential to be seen as a food source by coyotes, and larger dogs might be seen as a threat to a coyote’s territory.

What are the best ways to keep your pets safe? According to Colorado Parks & Wildlife, make sure to:

- Always supervise your pet when outside.
- Keep pets on a leash when walking.
- Never allow your pets to play with a coyote.
- Pick up small pets if confronted by a coyote.
- Do what you can to discourage a coyote's approach – yell, stomp your feet, or throw small rocks or sticks at it.
- Don’t leave food or water outside for pets.
- Never leave cats or dogs outside after dark.
- If you must leave your pet outside, secure it in a fully enclosed kennel.
- Keep your pets up to date on vaccinations.

Find more information about preventing conflicts with coyotes at highlandsranch.org/OSIC.

Who to call...

The Metro District is responsible for educating residents about coyotes, monitoring interactions between residents and coyotes, and reporting encounters to the appropriate agencies. Colorado Parks and Wildlife (CPW) manages all of our state’s wildlife. CPW personnel respond to reports of dangerous coyotes and decide how to handle each situation based on the interest of public safety.

- Highlands Ranch Metro District
  - 303-540-2311 Park Rangers’ pager. If you have concerns or would like to report an encounter with a coyote. Pages will typically receive a response within 15 minutes during normal business hours.
  - 720-240-5924 Open Space Supervisor Scott Nelson. If you have questions about coyote behavior, or if you would like to schedule a coyote conflict prevention home audit.

- Colorado Parks and Wildlife
  - 303-291-7227 If you have an incident or encounter with a coyote, or if a coyote is exhibiting dangerous behavior towards people (such as raising its hackles, baring its teeth or growling).
  - 911: If a person is injured or attacked by a coyote.

Collaboration between governments key to success

The Metro District and Douglas County Public Works staff have partnered for many years to identify streets and sidewalks in need of maintenance throughout Highlands Ranch. Douglas County staff has also identified storm sewers in need of maintenance or repairs. This year, the collaboration continues with key areas identified to receive repairs or maintenance.

This year’s projects include street surface treatment, sidewalk repairs and storm sewer repairs or maintenance. The project schedule includes:

- Sidewalk repairs – February to June
- Asphalt overlays – May to October
- Storm sewer maintenance/repairs – ongoing

Annual road repair and maintenance funding for Highlands Ranch has totaled $52.1 million since 2011. While no major concrete repairs are planned this year, spot and emergency repairs will be done as needed.

For project status and schedule updates, please visit https://apps.douglas.co.us/gis/pavement_maintenance.

Douglas County’s 2040 Transportation master plan

The 2040 Transportation Master Plan will define a long-range vision for a multi-modal transportation system that offers more choices in how people travel. For more information, please contact 2040tmp@douglas.co.us or 303-663-7224.
Weekly car seat inspections available at fire stations

The South Metro Safety Foundation (SMSF) and South Metro Fire Rescue (SMFR) provide courtesy inspections of child safety seats and booster seats for families who work and live in the SMFR service area, which includes Highlands Ranch. A car seat installation event is scheduled every Wednesday and every other Tuesday at these Highlands Ranch, Lone Tree and Littleton locations:

- Fire Station 34
  8871 Maximus Drive, Lone Tree, CO 80124
- Fire Station 12
  South Broadway, Littleton, CO 80121
- Fire Station 16
  Blakeland Drive, Littleton, CO 80125

Make an appointment at southmetrofoundation.org. Car restraints expire after six years unless otherwise stated. If your car seat has been involved in a major or moderate crash, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration recommends you replace it. Do not buy a used child seat or booster unless it is from a trusted source and you know the seat’s crash history.

South Metro Safety Foundation earns grants

The South Metro Safety Foundation (SMSF) is able to offer safety classes thanks to a $15,000 grant from the State Farm Good Neighbor Citizenship Program and a $2,500 grant from the E-470 Transportation Safety Foundation. These funds assist in providing safety programs for adult and teen drivers living in our community.

The foundation offers a variety of classes, including:

Adult/Senior Driving Skills

This four-hour, behind-the-wheel class refreshes and enhances driving skills for adults and seniors. Skills taught include skid control and recovery, emergency steering, crash avoidance techniques and threshold braking. The cost is $60 and class dates are March 30, April 7 and May 11.

Super Sitter Babysitting Class

Prepare your teen with information that every responsible babysitter needs to know. The class is designed for teens 11 to 14 years old and includes training in safe play, child care, professionalism and certification in pediatric CPR/AED/First Aid. The cost is $85.

To learn more about all the classes offered, please visit southmetrofoundation.org or call 303-805-0228.

Responding to mental health calls

Guest Column by Captain Troy McCarty, Douglas County Sheriff’s Office, Highlands Ranch Division

The sheriff’s office has seen calls involving mental health issues rise over the last several years. The calls consume a patrol deputy’s time and increase response time to other calls for service. This prompted the Sheriff to look closer at not only dealing specifically with mental health calls, but also how to reduce the amount of time deputies are spending on these types of calls.

Two years ago the Sheriff, in conjunction with the Douglas County Mental Health Initiative (DCMHI), started a program, now known as the Community Response Team (CRT) that pairs a deputy with a mental health professional. Together they respond to calls for service, specifically dealing with mental health issues. The CRT responds to and follows up on calls involving suicidal subjects, persons in or having a mental health crisis, welfare checks and substance abuse cases, providing professional assessment on scene. They are also available as a resource to the community to help connect people to the mental health and substance abuse assistance systems before a crisis even begins.

The primary goals of the CRT are to return patrol deputies to their regular duties, reduce unnecessary emergency department usage, minimize use of fire services and to provide a better level of care for the citizen. This is achieved by placing clients at the right level of care for their situation from the first contact with law enforcement.

In 2018 the CRT responded to 1,195 encounters, met 724 unique individuals and placed 75 clients on mental health holds. The CRT released 626 patrol units back into service to answer patrol related calls. CRT also released 78 fire personnel and 38 fire apparatuses back into service to respond to fire and emergency calls. The CRT saved the local emergency departments 188 unnecessary visits and redirected 88 individuals away from jail who had committed minor crimes while suffering from mental illness.

As mentioned earlier, the DCSO CRT is part of the Douglas County Mental Health Initiative and partners with the Castle Rock Police Department to provide a better response and interaction with the citizens of Douglas County who suffer from mental illness and substance abuse problems. If you or someone you know may need their assistance, please take time to meet the team at the various Coffee with a Cop events throughout the county. Please visit desheriff.net or watch for DCSO social media posts on Twitter and Facebook to find these events. You can also call 303-660-7505 and be connected to a CRT member.
Apply for local jobs
If you’re looking for a seasonal job this spring and summer, consider working close to home, right here in Highlands Ranch. Visit the Metro District’s employment page at highlandsranch.org/jobs.

Spring volunteer opportunity
If you don’t mind getting a little dirty, enjoy spending time outdoors, and want to give back to your community, Renew the Ranch is the volunteer project for you. On Saturday, May 4 volunteers will team up to help keep Highlands Ranch beautiful. Metro District open space staff work alongside volunteers as they venture out into designated parks and open space areas in the community. Participants will help pick up trash and found treasures that don’t belong in our open space system.

Renew the Ranch is a kid-friendly activity. Groups, families, and individuals are all encouraged to attend. This is a great opportunity for families to volunteer together and for high school students to earn community service hours required for graduation.

To volunteer, please contact Kari Larese at 720-240-4909 or klarese@highlandsranch.org. After registering, you will be contacted prior to the event with the park location to which you will be assigned.

A valuable resource for older adults
Jodie McCann is a valuable resource in our community. Jodie is the Active Adult Programs and Services Coordinator with the Metro District. She provides information and referrals to services for adults 50 plus and their families. Additionally, she plans recreational activities, social and educational programming.

“I work with older adults and family members who may be caring for a loved one,” said Jodie. “I also hear from adults 50 plus who are moving to Highlands Ranch to be near children and grandchildren. They are interested in staying active, learning, and making new friends. I help make those connections happen.”

Jodie is a resource on a variety of senior issues and fields calls weekly on topics including:
- Transportation
- In-home care
- Handyman services
- Legal assistance
- Senior housing
- Support groups

“My real objective is to help people have a positive and purposeful aging experience. That will happen through education, planning and staying socially active,” said Jodie. “Helping someone find a needed service or product is one of the rewards of my job.”

Jodie has lived in the Denver area since 1997. When not helping adults in Highlands Ranch, she can be found enjoying time with her family, including two young grandchildren, and being active with her friends. She enjoys reading, outdoor concerts and road trips.

To contact Jodie, or to schedule a one-on-one meeting, contact her at jmccann@highlandsranch.org or visit the Active Adult Programs and Services website to view upcoming activities at highlandsranch.org/aaps.

Rates, facilities impacted by federal regulations

Water and wastewater utilities across the country are being impacted by increased federal regulatory requirements. Centennial Water & Sanitation District, which serves Highlands Ranch, is no exception.

Centennial Water is preparing to make improvements to the Marcy Gulch Wastewater Treatment Plant to satisfy more stringent regulatory discharge requirements that go into effect in 2021. The improvement project was bid in fall 2018 and Centennial Water awarded the contract to Flatiron Construction in January. Work is scheduled to begin this spring and should take up to three and a half years to complete. The wastewater treatment plant was built in the 1980s and this is the first major improvement to the facility.

The $86 million project will be funded in part by $75 million in debt issuance. This project is possible, in large part, because of a successful bond issuance due to Centennial Water’s strong financial background and a AAA rating from Standard & Poor’s Global Ratings (S&P).

“Standard & Poor’s assigned its AAA long-term rating to Centennial Water and Sanitation District, Co.’s series 2019 water and sewer revenue bonds. The rating reflects, in our opinion, the combination of extremely strong enterprise and financial risk profiles. The outlook is stable,” according to a S&P news release.

The enterprise risk profile reflects S&P’s view of Centennial Water’s service area participation in the broad and diverse Denver-metropolitan statistical area economy. This includes competitive customer rates, given the very strong wealth levels; and strong operational management practices and policies represented by sufficient water supply and treatment capacity to meet demand in addition to focus on long-term wastewater system reliability and compliance with new environmental regulations, among other factors.

Drought conditions and water conservation

It’s always important to be diligent when it comes to water conservation. According to the U.S. Drought Monitor’s Feb. 19 report, 92 percent of Colorado is in a drought, varying from extreme to abnormally dry.

The snowpack for the South Platte Basin, where Highlands Ranch is located, is currently at 108 percent, and the state on average is at 109 percent. This is good news and helps the drought conditions across the state, but we still need to do our part.

What can you do to help? Continue to be water conscious. Small actions can make a big impact in the long run. Turn the faucet off when brushing your teeth or washing your face. Only run a full dishwasher or load of laundry, and try to cut back on the length of showers – even one minute will save 2.1 gallons of water.

Mother Nature shouldn’t be working alone when it comes to saving water in Colorado.

How to read your water meter

Your water meter is the key tool to learn how much water you use and to help identify possible leaks. It’s a good idea to periodically check and record water use to identify when you may be approaching your allocated water budget amount. Your bi-monthly bill shows the water budgets for the current and upcoming billing period. This amount will increase during the irrigation season, based on your lot size.

Winter is a great time to become familiar with your water meter. You can get ahead of the game by tracking water use as you head into spring and summer months, when outdoor water use increases.

Where is my water meter located?

Your water meter is located in either your basement or garage.

How often should I read my meter?

The frequency of reading your meter is up to you, however the key is to be consistent. Reading your meter once a week is a good start. Make sure to read your meter the same time of day, and the same day of the week each time. For example, start every Saturday morning.

How do I read it?

1. Record the number displayed on your meter, reading left to right
2. Record the date and time of each reading.
3. After taking a second reading, subtract the first reading from the second reading. This will give you the total water usage to the nearest ten gallons over the period between the readings.
4. Once you’ve recorded a few weeks of water usage, you will be able to identify if your water use changes, and you can evaluate what you are doing differently at home that may be the cause of the change.

Checking for leaks

A leak detector is located on your water meter. Checking for leaks should only be performed when there is no water in use inside or outside your home. There are two types of water meters used in Highlands Ranch, an E-series meter and a Badger meter, both pictured. An E-series meter has a digital display. If a leak is detected, a faucet icon with a drop will appear on the display. Badger meters are round and have a red sundial on the display. If the red sundial is spinning, that indicates a leak.

If you have questions, please call 303-791-0430.
Help support native pollinators

Did you know one out of every three bites of food you take is dependent on a pollinator? Native pollinators are integral to our food supply and quality of life. Considering an estimated 400 pollinator species may be at risk of extinction, it’s important to take steps to help support them.

“Start small. Supporting pollinators doesn’t have to be an all or nothing proposition,” said Sandy Holcomb, Metro District park ranger. Holcomb is also a beekeeper and native plant master, and works to raise awareness of pollinators in our community.

Steps homeowners can take include:

Plants pollinator-friendly habitat – By adding more native plants that bloom from early spring to late fall you will provide food and shelter for native pollinators. Benefits of adding native plants to your landscaping include less upkeep, as these varieties have already adapted to our region’s soil and precipitation levels. You can also consider converting a portion of turf grass to native plants.

Avoiding chemicals and pesticides – Urban usage of pesticides tends to be higher than necessary and negatively impacts insects and other pollinators. Chemical runoff gets into the water supply and contaminates streams and wetlands. There are many beneficial insects that help plant life survive and thrive, so trying to eradicate all of them is a mistake.

Providing nesting sites – By leaving some areas of bare soil in your yard, you can provide nesting habitat for some important varieties of bees. Pollinators will also take advantage of woody stocks of plants, brush piles and leaf litter on the ground.

“It’s always important to add to the health and biodiversity of our local ecosystem,” Holcomb said. “As more people learn how to help, many of these steps will become second nature.”

Later this spring, Holcomb will plant a demonstration pollinator garden at Kistler Park with the help of Highlands Ranch residents. Learn more about this Planting for Native Pollinators program on Page 22.

Open space crossing repairs benefit trail users

As open space trail crossings in Highlands Ranch age, it is necessary to make repairs to ensure their continued functionality. This year marks the third of three years planned for trail crossing improvements. These crossings are more than 35 years old, and corrosion in the pipes can lead to a breakdown of the crossing itself.

Two crossings will be repaired this spring: one along the West Fork Trail in the open space northwest of Highlands Ranch Parkway and Broadway, and another along the Dad Clark Trail in the open space west of Sand Creek Park.

Residents will still be able to use the trails during repair work. The Metro District recognizes their high recreational use and importance as walk-to-school routes.

Repairs consist of lining the existing culverts and injecting concrete slurry to fill any voids caused by years of erosion. This innovative repair method avoids removing and replacing the crossings, which would cost about eight times more. Repairs significantly increase the longevity of the crossings and reduce future maintenance.

Enjoy the fountains at Civic Green Park

The popular water features are a fun activity for people of all ages. The overlook stream and fountain, which runs 24 hours a day, will be operating by Wednesday, April 17, weather permitting. The interactive plaza fountain in front of the pavilion will start to flow by Wednesday, May 1. The plaza fountain operates daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. unless turned off for a special event.

95 percent of Americans think communities should make special efforts to create designated areas for plants to support the health and growth of pollinators.

Only 34 percent of Americans are completely or very confident in knowing what actions they can take to help the conservation of pollinators.

Sports field partnership hits 20-year milestone

For more than 20 years, the Metro District has partnered with the Douglas County School District (DCSD) on the maintenance and programming of 15 multi-use sports fields at elementary school sites in the community. During those two decades kids and adults spent approximately 120,000 hours playing football, soccer, lacrosse, T-ball, baseball, softball and other sports on the fields.

The two organizations share maintenance costs, and the Metro District reserves and programs all 15 fields outside of regular school hours. Rental revenues supplement the cost of maintenance and amenities at the school sites.

“It's been a really successful partnership that has benefited both organizations. It's endured because of the benefit it provides to the community," said Carolyn Peters, Metro District recreation manager.

Submitting all field requests to the Metro District allows fields to be allocated based on program participation levels and helps balance the use at each location. Metro District staff members have good relationships with staff at the individual schools and help make sure there aren't conflicts with school activities or programs.

Beginning last year, there has been a refocus on resting school sites when needed. This summer the field at Redstone Elementary School and a large portion of the field at Summit View Elementary School will be rested to allow restoration maintenance on the turf. During this time the fields will be able to recover and regrow.

Regular maintenance of the fields includes aerating, fertilizing, seeding, adding fill dirt and grading the dirt infields. Improvement projects throughout the years have included adding dirt infields, adding backstops, improving and extending fences, adding player benches, adding shelters, installing restrooms, adding dugouts and dugout covers, and installing one field of synthetic turf. The Metro District also partners with DCSD on a joint use agreement for Shea Stadium.

Freshening up community fences

This year’s parkway fence staining project is expected to begin in early April and take about two months to complete, depending on weather. More than 18,700 linear feet of fence along Gateway Drive, Summit View Parkway, Grace Boulevard and South Ranch Road will be stained. With two coats, that’s almost 940 gallons of stain.

Preparation work is expected to begin in March, and includes power washing and fixing broken posts. Letters will be sent to adjacent homeowners informing them of the staining schedule. The Metro District only stains the street side of the fence.

More than 42 miles of parkway fence winds through Highlands Ranch and ongoing maintenance is part of the Metro District’s commitment to keep the community well-maintained and attractive. The fence program only applies to Metro-District owned fence along the parkways and does not have any bearing on individual homeowner’s fences. If you have any questions about the Metro District’s fence program, visit highlansranch.org/fence.

Why is my fence post spray painted?

Before parkway fence maintenance begins, broken posts are identified and marked with pink spray paint on the street facing side. These posts will be replaced. If you have a broken fence or maintenance issue, please contact info@highlansranch.org.

Planting for Native Pollinators
All Ages
Help celebrate National Pollinator Month by digging in and creating a native plant garden at Kistler Park. Native pollinators, including butterflies, bees, and birds are declining in Colorado and elsewhere in the U.S. largely due to habitat loss. Join our resident native plant master and beekeeper to learn all about how we can cultivate local vegetation that supports native wildlife.
