Ladies of the Brown

An evening with Debra Faulkner, Brown Palace Hotel Historian

Burly pioneers, businessmen and male politicians comprise only half the story of our past.

“Ladies of The Brown” examines the often overlooked feminine dimension of western development, through selected profiles of extraordinary women with various connections over the decades to Denver's iconic Brown Palace hotel.

Taken together, their stories shed light on the changing personal, professional and political roles of women over the more than 12 decades the hotel has reigned as Denver's Grande Dame.

Cash bar, with beer and wine, will be available.
